

See all News

News

Prince Harry's conservation charity African Parks takes on neglected Zimbabwean national park

Prince Harry at the Chobe National Park, Botswana, in September CREDIT: DOMINIK LIPINSKI/POOL VIA AP

By Victoria Ward and Peta Thornycroft

3 NOVEMBER 2019 • 6:38PM

The Duke of Sussex's African Parks has taken over the management of one of Zimbabwe's most neglected national parks that has fallen victim to rampant poaching

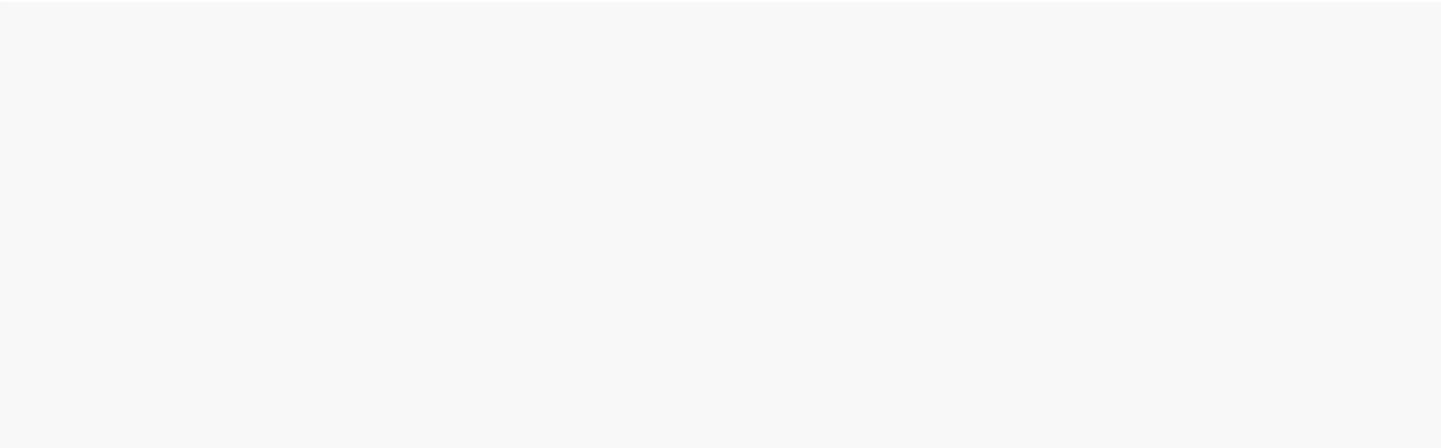

It aims to reform the 1,000 square mile Matusadonha National Park's elephant and black rhino populations and transform it into a leading leading safari destination.

The Duke spent almost three weeks working with African Parks in Malawi in 2016 as the organisation embarked on one of the biggest elephant translocation projects in conservation history. He returned to the Liwonde National Park Headquarters in September for an update on its progress.

Writing in this newspaper during his recent tour of southern Africa, he revealed that the experience three years earlier had taken his understanding and respect for conservation to a "whole new level".

In 2017, he became president of African Parks, a sign of his personal commitment to the region. Peter Fearnhead, its chief executive, was a guest at his wedding to Meghan Markle.

Matusadonha National Park, in northern Zimbabwe, is flanked by the giant Lake Kariba and has two rivers running through it.

Elephants at Matusadona National Park CREDIT: DENNIS COX / ALAMY

Frances Read, from African Parks, said it was one of the country's flagship and most valuable areas, with the potential to become a leading safari destination.

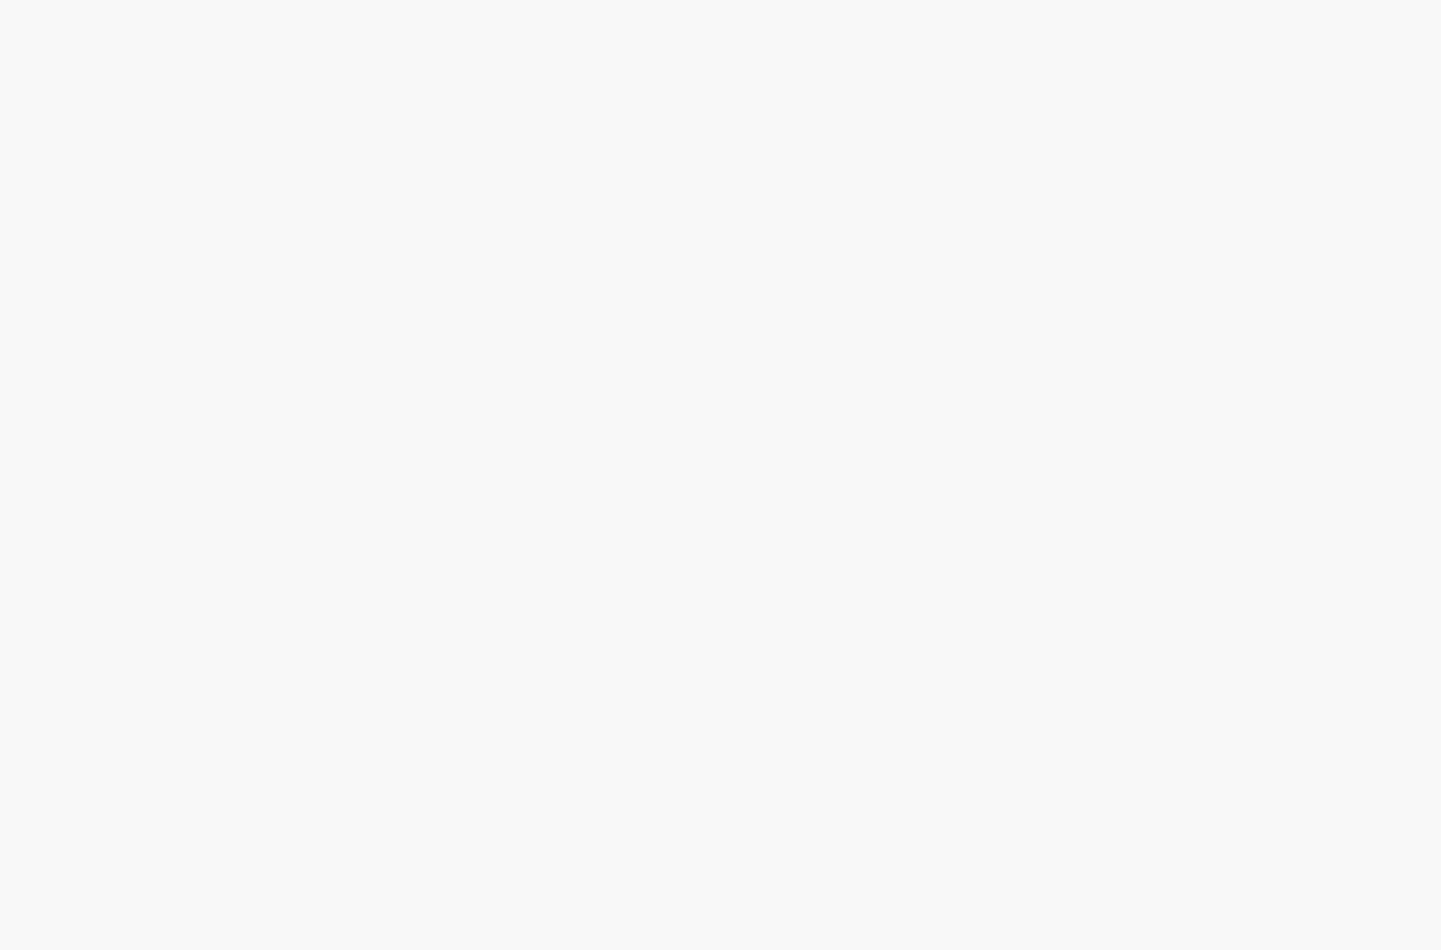

But it is fraught with challenges and in desperate need of funding and proper management, which it will undertake in partnership with the Zimbabwe Parks and Wildlife Management Authority. Poachers have all but wiped out its black rhino population whilst elephant numbers have been severely depleted.

Ms Read said the first job will be to secure its borders to allow wildlife populations to recover and rebound naturally before implementing effective management structures and law enforcement strategies.

"We will then be working with the local community so they start to see that this is for them and that this is an asset," she said. "Matusadonha is a very special place for Zimbabwe and has a lot of potential for tourism and socio-economic development."

The 20-year contract awarded to African Parks - its first foray into the country - is considered all the more remarkable by conservationists who had thought it highly unlikely that the government of Zimbabwe would ever allow a foreign organisation to take control of its wildlife resources.

Blondie Leatham, one of Zimbabwe's best known conservationists and safari operators, said: "This is one of the most exciting things that has happened for wildlife in Zimbabwe for a very long time."

Prince Harry working with African Parks in Malawi in 2016 CREDIT: AFRICAN PARKS/FRANK WEITZER

The Duke recently described the continent as his "second home" and has made no secret of the special place it holds in his heart, having first travelled there in the immediate aftermath of the death of his mother, Diana, Princess of Wales, in 1997.

During his recent tour of southern Africa with the Duchess of Sussex and their son, Archie, he revealed their "life work will be predominantly focused on Africa, on conservation."

Whilst in Malawi in 2016, the Duke expressed great concern for conservation parks, saying: "I do worry. I think everyone should worry. We need to look after them, because otherwise our children will not have a chance to see what we have seen. This is God's test: If we can't save some animals in a wilderness area, what else can't we do?"

African Parks is a non-profit NGO working with governments and local communities. Its latest agreement with Zimbabwe, signed on Friday, takes the number of parks it manages to 16 in 10 countries covering almost 11 million hectares.

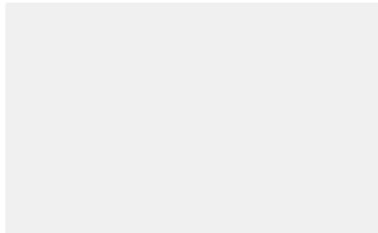

FOLLOW THE TELEGRAPH

Follow on Facebook Follow on Twitter Follow on Instagram Follow on LinkedIn

News latest

08 Nov 2019, 1:04pm Live General election latest news: Labour candidate steps down over 'Shylock' comment as party's anti-Semitism c intensifies

08 Nov 2019, 12:59pm Grace Millane trial: blood found in accused killer's flat 'likely' to be hers

Live UK weather: Doncaster evacuation ordered as severe flooding hits Yorkshire, with shoppers stranded in Meadowhall overnight

08 Nov 2019, 12:45pm Boris Johnson says he has given up alcohol until after Brexit PREMIUM

08 Nov 2019, 12:08pm Wife and lover jailed for killing millionaire farmer William Taylor

08 Nov 2019, 12:06pm Michael Bloomberg expected to enter Democratic primary amid fears over rise of the Left

This election could rest on finding a reply to 'Ok, Boomer' 08 Nov 2019, 12:01pm DAN

08 Nov 2019, 11:55am The Tories will win this election no matter how many gaffes they make' - Telegraph readers on this week's top stories PREMIUM

08 Nov 2019, 11:53am Gareth Thomas hails support of Prince Harry and the Royal Family after revealing HIV diagnosis

08 Nov 2019, 11:48am Ellie Gould murder: Teenage swimming star who stabbed girlfriend to death jailed for life

08 Nov 2019, 11:41am State-sponsored assassination or sex game gone wrong: what do the experts think really happened to The Spy in the Bag? PREMIUM

08 Nov 2019, 11:08am The best of The Telegraph in audio: Google's Fitbit purchase and should bosses be allowed to date their staff?

Silver Spitfire pilot log week 10: battling through the troubled air of India 08 Nov 2019, 11:03am

08 Nov 2019, 10:59am Unprecedented bushfire crisis grips New South Wales, as 1,000 firefighters struggle to tame blaze

08 Nov 2019, 10:00am No exams, no uniform and no football team: Inside the best school in the world PREMIUM

08 Nov 2019, 9:42am Hundreds of bones found in world's first mammoth trap

08 Nov 2019, 9:41am Telegraph Audio Briefings: Sign up to our WhatsApp group for essential twice-daily updates

08 Nov 2019, 9:33am Dancing through the pain: Is a stricter Strictly leading to injuries being the new 'curse'? PREMIUM

08 Nov 2019, 9:26am Has the last pilot already been born? PREMIUM

08 Nov 2019, 9:13am Priests would rather die than break the Seal of Confession, Cardinal Nichols tells child sex abuse inquiry

- Contact us
- About us
- Rewards
- Archive
- Reader Prints
- Branded Content
- Syndication and Commissioning
- Guidelines
- Privacy
- Terms and Conditions
- Advertising terms
- Fantasy Sport
- Black Friday
- UK Voucher Codes
- Betting
- Modern Slavery
- Manage Cookies